Profile

A self-taught, frontend web developer, looking to work with a company to bring high-quality, responsive and engaging web experiences to clients. As a junior developer, I aim to continually improve my skills and refine my work by practicing familiar subjects, whilst exploring new areas of the ever-expanding web development ecosystem. I am open to working both collaboratively with other developers to create incredible full-stack projects, as well as independently as I always take great pride in my work.
